

Fawn Pedalino serves as Chief Financial Officer for Southeastern Technology, a small IT firm that has provided technology services to businesses across South Carolina since 2011. Her professional background also includes work as a licensed real estate professional and prior service in emergency medical services, reflecting a strong foundation in both business operations and public service.

Fawn represents South Carolina House District 64, which includes Clarendon County and portions of Sumter County. She serves on the Labor, Commerce and Industry Committee and the Rules Committee, and she is appointed to the Child Fatality Advisory Committee, where she contributes to policy discussions impacting economic development, regulatory oversight, and public safety.

She is married to Joseph Pedalino and they have two daughters, Selah and Rumer.
